

Are you registered yet?

Why not sign up? You can take part in the forum discussions and even post new comments to stimulate debate or just publicise events.

Don't know how to sign up?

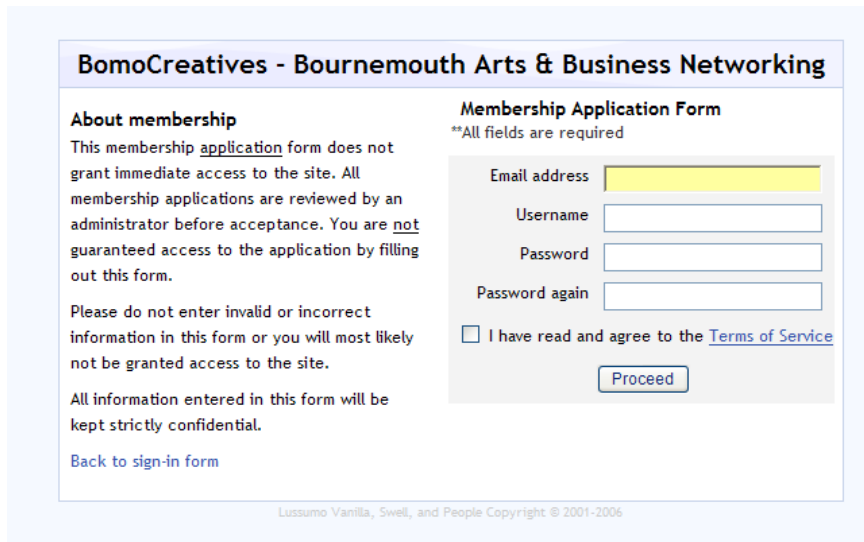

You should be able to see this as part of the screen display:

Click on the 'Not signed in (Sign In)' link circled above.

You will be taken to this screen next. Click on the 'Apply for membership' link circled above.

A screenshot of the BomoCreatives Membership Application Form. The form has a light blue background and is titled "BomoCreatives - Bournemouth Arts & Business Networking". It is divided into two columns. The left column is titled "About membership" and contains text explaining that the membership application form does not grant immediate access to the site and that all applications are reviewed by an administrator. It also states that all information entered in the form will be kept strictly confidential and provides a link to "Back to sign-in form". The right column is titled "Membership Application Form" and contains a form with fields for "Email address", "Username", "Password", and "Password again". There is a checkbox for "I have read and agree to the Terms of Service" and a "Proceed" button. A note at the top of the right column says "All fields are required". At the bottom of the page, there is a copyright notice: "Lussumo Vanilla, Swell, and People Copyright © 2001-2006".

This is the next screen. Put in the required details and click 'Proceed'.

This is an application. You will not be able to add comments or start new threads until you have received an e-mail confirming acceptance of your application.

I look forward to reading your contributions.